Possibly Incomplete Lists of Veterans of All Wars

Who have lived in Wasatch County:

Utah Indian Wars: (1824-1923)

9-24-97
Wave

(There were many skirmishes, raids and outright wars waged after the arrival of the Pioneers into Utah. For the most part, Wasatch County residents were not involved in any of them, except The Echo War (or Utah War), the Battle Creek (or Pleasant Grove War), The Wasatch County Raids, and Black Hawk War. Our residents were not involved in the Tintic War, Gosiute War, Bear River conflict, Salt Creek Canyon murders, or the last Indian War in America, in Blanding, Utah, called the Posey War. So the following is a list of the Indian War Veterans, as organized on 26 May in 1866, in Heber City, by Col. Robert T. Burton and David J Ross of the Utah Territorial Militia, with orders from General Daniel H Wells. All available men were organized into four Companies, comprising the Wasatch County Militia of the Utah Territorial Militia).

Terry Tempest Williams was born in 1955 and grew up within sight of the Great Salt Lake. Her writing reflects her intimate relationship with the natural world. She is the author of several books including Pieces of White Shell - A Journey to Navajoland (1984); Coyote's Canyon (1989); Refuge - An Unnatural History of Family and Place (1991); An Unspoken Hunger Stories from the Field (1994); and most recently, Desert Quartet - An Erotic Landscape (1995). Collaborations include Great and Peculiar Beauty - A Utah Reader edited with Thomas J. Lyon (1995); Testimony - Writers of the West Speak on Behalf of Utah Wilderness edited with Stephen Trimble (1996) and the forthcoming anthology, The New Genesis - Mormons Writing On Environment (1998).

Ms. Williams has said that she writes "through my biases of gender, geography, and culture, that I am a woman whose ideas have been shaped by the Colorado Plateau and the Great Basin, that these ideas are then filtered through the prism of my culture — and my culture is Mormon. Those tenets of family and community that I see at the heart of that culture are then articulated through story."

Terry Tempest Williams was identified by Newsweek as someone likely to make "a considerable impact on the political, economic and environmental issues facing the western states in this decade." She was also recognized by the UTNE Reader as a "visionary," one of the UTNE 100 'who could change your life.' A recipient of the National Wildlife Federation's National Conservation Award for Special Achievement, she was recently inducted into the Rachel Carson Institute's Honor Roll.

She has served as naturalist-in-residence at the Utah Museum of Natural History and is currently the Shirley Sutton Thomas Visiting Professor of English at the University of Utah. Ms. Williams has received a Lannan Literary Fellowship in creative nonfiction along with a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1997. She lives with her husband Brooke in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Possibly Incomplete Lists of Veterans of All Wars

Who have lived in Wasatch County:

Utah Indian Wars: (1824-1923)

(There were many skirmishes, raids and outright wars waged after the arrival of the Pioneers into Utah. For the most part, Wasatch County residents were not involved in any of them, except The Echo War (or Utah War), the Battle Creek (or Pleasant Grove War), The Wasatch County Raids, and Black Hawk War. Our residents were not involved in the Tintic War, Gosiute War, Bear River conflict, Salt Creek Canyon murders, or the last Indian War in America, in Blanding, Utah, called the Posey War. So the following is a list of the Indian War Veterans, as organized on 26 May in 1866, in Heber City, by Col. Robert T. Burton and David J Ross of the Utah Territorial Militia, with orders from General Daniel H Wells. All available men were organized into four Companies, comprising the Wasatch County Militia of the Utah Territorial Militia).

The veterans of the Black Hawk War, which commenced in 1865, comprise most of the early male pioneer settlers in Wasatch County and are as follows:
